THE RAILROADS, with their stocks still climbing on the Stock Exchange, say they want "the railroads taken out of politics."

To that, if the railroads meant it, the public would say amen. The roads have been in politics so long, ruling politics and officeholders so long, that a change would be welcome.

WHAT THE RAILROADS mean is that they would like the outsiders in politics to let them alone, to take everything in sight, asking for and getting anything they don't see.

This is harvest time for the railroads, and until some party comes along to disturb the happy dream all will be well.

IN TIME, however, the voters, when less prosperous times make thinking necessary, will decide to have a government running the railroads, instead of railroads running the government.

This is not said unkindly, or by an agent of Bolshevism. The writer has a few thousand shares of railroad stocks, a few hundred thousands in railroad bonds. But it is desirable for railroad men to realize that it is not going to be mid-Summer for ever.

There is cold weather coming.

A FRIEND of John W. Davis says that he will not run for the Presidency again next time. That is probably true.

Mr. Davis and Mr. Cox, each beaten by a plurality of about seven millions, might form a "We ain't goin' to run no more" club.

RABINDRANATH TAGORE, Indian poet and patriot, dangerously ill in Buenos Aires, wrote one thing that will last. This is the story, shortened:

A man knew that somewhere along the pebbly ocean shore there was one pebble, a touch from which would change iron to gold.

Hour after hour he walked, touching pebbles to the iron bracelet on his wrist. But it did not change to gold.

On he went, picking up pebbles, dropping them. As the sun was sinking, he looked down and saw that he wore a golden bracelet. He had picked up the magic pebble, and it had done its work. But for a long time he had worked mechanically, ceasing to pay attention to the bracelet as he touched it.

Which of the millions of pebbles behind him possessed the magic power. He could not tell. He had held it, had thrown it away. The night was falling. It was too late to go back along the dark shore. His chance was gone. And he had held it in his hands.

For workers that treat their jobs mechanically, content to "get by," sooner or later the chance comes. He that fails to pay attention passes the chance and loses it.

THE STRANGE MURDER or suicide in Ohio puzzles you. Mrs. Sheatsley is alleged to have crawled into the furnace in the cellar of her house and, after carefully closing the furnace door behind her, she is supposed to have burned herself to death.

And the door of that furnace is only fourteen inches wide. Could a woman, with nothing to hold on to, pull herself in, then turn around on the blazing fire, pull the door shut, and settle down to burn up? It seems improbable.

HER HUSBAND, the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley, suggests that the Hindu women sometimes burn themselves. So they do. But they do not crawl through a narrow furnace door, shut it behind them, and then indulge in "suttee," all alone. They usually have a crowd of relatives admiring them, as they burn with their husbands' dead bodies, the relatives shouting to drown the poor widows' cries.

SOME AUTHORITIES say it looks like murder, but there is no clew. It offers a chance

GRAND JURY MAY BEGIN SWEEPING INQUIRY

Indictment of Several Politicians Is Expected From "Shakedown" Story

A sweeping investigation, to be followed by indictments of many persons prominent in local circles, was promised today as a result of the revelations of alleged extortion in the Suffolk County courthouse.

District-Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien is said to have received additional evidence concerning the mulcting of Superior Court defendants who paid money to psuedo officials to keep out of jail.

It was said the evidence will be given to the grand jury, and the most far-reaching probe in the history of Boston will result.

HUNT FOR OTHERS.

Receipt of the new evidence followed District Attorney O'Brien's disclosures relative to the Harry Byer case. According to the story told by Byer, who is a convicted liquor seller, four or five young men, one of them a member of the legislature, took $300 from him to fix his case.

Byer, who had been found guilty in the lower court and appealed, paid the money to a man who posed as the district attorney. Later, to the defendant's surprise, he received a two months' sentence and $50 fine in Superior Court. His wife appealed to the district attorney. His sentence to Deer Island was revoked in order that he may testify against the "fixers."

Police officers connected with the district attorney's office will be assigned to the investigation, not only of the Byer case, but of any others of that type concerning which evidence may be obtained. The evidence will be presented to the Grand Jury, which convenes in two weeks.

It is expected that arrests of some or all of those said to be involved in the holdup of Byer will take place tomorrow.

One of the men alleged to have been implicated in the Byer case is a member of the State House of Representatives from a Boston district, another was an unsuccessful aspirant for a House seat from a

HAIL OF SHOTS STOPS YOUTHS IN AUTO

A fusilade of shots was fired by two policemen in an automobile chase after a stolen car in East Boston today.

Thomas L. Cahill, 19 years old of Paris street, East Boston, and Francis J. Moriarty, 20 years old, of Bellflower street, Dorchester, were arrested charged with larceny of an automobile.

Patrolmen Philben and Fennelly said they saw the youths step into a car parked on Bennington street and drive away. The officers shouted at them to stop but they refused. Each policeman then fired two shots in the air without result.

Commandeering a passing automobile, they pursued the fleeing machine for about four miles through the Harbor View section of East Boston, firing shots in the air at intervals. Eventually they overhauled the other machine, and forced the driver to stop.

GIRL HOLDS LOVE PACT IN SAFE

Stamp King's Burning Words Are Basis of Manicure's $300,000 Suit

That Zoe Evans, spurned manicurist who seeks $300,000 from George B. Caldwell, multi-millionaire, frankly pointed out to her wealthy suitor the gap between their social position, is declared in letters written by her to Caldwell, which will figure in the breach of promise trial.

According to letters Miss Evans alleges Caldwell wrote to her, the clubman swept aside her protestations and assured her of her fitness to be his wife.

"Miss Evans was sincere in her love affair with this man," says Attorney Kempton, her counsel. "Caldwell stated that any shortcomings were on his side."

BASES SUIT ON LETTERS.

The little package of letters written by Caldwell, said to breathe love and affection, are the basis of the suit brought by the Hotel Touraine manicurist against the "trading stamp king."

These love notes, her counsel declares, are locked in a vault for safe-keeping.

Attorney Kempton revealed a peculiar coincidence. He said that it was but a few days after he had taken the letters to the safe deposit vault that burglars broke into the aparment of Miss Evans at No. 1298 Commonwealth avenue, and ransacked the entire place. Nothing was taken, although there were rings, money, and other jewelry about the place.

VISITED APARTMENT.

Miss Evans, with blonde hair and large brown eyes, tearfully told how the millionaire New Yorker pressed his love suit and won her heart while she was trimming and polishing his nails at the Hotel Touraine, where she has been employed for a number of years.

Across the little manicuring table Caldwell, she says, breathed words of passion and love. Then these love scenes were continued in her modest little apartment at No. 1298 Commonwealth avenue.

Caldwell, organizer of the Investment Bankers' Association of America and now president of the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, an immense trading stamp premium concern, brushed aside the manicurist's protestations that there was too much difference in their stations of life.

"He said I was an angel and we would be so happy," said the manicurist.

"He told me he didn't want to get married until his daughter by his first wife was wedded.

"Then, a couple of months later I was stunned when I learned that Mr. Caldwell had married a Maine school teacher."

from the Napoleon of the trading stamp world came about January 23, 1923, according to Miss Evans. It

Odds Favor Yale as Harvard Team Leaves Town

The Harvard varsity squad of forty-eight players left Cambridge today for New Haven, where it will practice in the Yale Bowl for its annual game against Yale tomorrow. The team will spend the night at Derby, Ct.

As the Crimson players left, the betting odds heavily favored Yale. In hotel lobbies and clubs the odds were quoted at ten to four in favor of Eli.

The prospect of showers tomorrow is slight. Unsettled weather is predicted, however.

BANDITS HOLD UP EVERETT STORE

Driving up to the fur store of Swartz Bros., No. 684 Broadway, Everett, in the business section of the city, at 9:30 a. m. today, two youths stepped from an automobile.

Entering the store, they produced guns and without any preliminaries commanded:

"Hands up."

Samuel and Earl Swartz, the proprietors, who were standing near the window, complied, and while one of the gunmen covered them, the other went to a rack and selected three women's fur coats, valued at $1,500.

Draping these over his left arm, he in turn covered the Swartz broth-

SUCCUMBS IN LONG BATTLE

End Comes Peacefully After Fight for Life Lasting Several Weeks

Marion, O., Nov. 21 (A.P.).—Florence Kling Harding, widow of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States, died here today.

The end came at 8:55 a. m. at the White Oaks Sanitarium of Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, where she had been fighting for life for the last few weeks.

Mrs. Harding's death was due directly to a kidney ailment, from which she has suffered for years and which nearly resulted fatally while she was mistress of the White House. She died peacefully, Dr. Sawyer said.

Except for a short interval of residence in Washington, Mrs. Harding had lived at the White Oaks farm since the death of President Harding in August, 1923. She went there primarily to be under the care of the late Brigadier-General Charles E. Sawyer, who had been personal physician to her husband while he was chief executive, and who had been her physician for twenty years.

She became ill shortly after the death of Dr. Sawyer early this Fall, which, it was believed, brought a relapse in her condition.

Mrs. Harding was born August 15, 1860, at Marion, Ohio, the daughter of Amos Kling, prominent banker and business man of the little town and a direct descendant of an old Mennonite Pennsylvania Dutch family.

At the age of twenty, Florence Kling married Eugene DeWolfe, a young native of Marion. One child—Marshall Eugene—resulted from this union, he dying about nine years ago, leaving two children—Jean and George.

As was the custom in those days, DeWolfe, in company with many of the other youths of that section of Ohio, went West one year to follow the fruit harvest up the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Harding heard regularly from her first husband for a while, and then he dropped from sight, being last heard of in Oregon or Washington.

was some months after this time that Caldwell married Miss Andrews.

"I had wonderful day dreams," said the manicurist. "I thought I was going to live in the big Caldwell mansion on Fifth avenue, New York, and preside over the summer home at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, and it was a terrible shock when I found out that there would be nothing but dreams."

It was while on a hurried business trip to Boston that Caldwell met Miss Evans more than two years ago, according to her story.

Miss Evans is back at her manicuring table at the hotel. She shares her Commonwealth avenue apartment with a nurse, and she declares that romance is gone from her life forever.

"I'm going to try to make him pay for my broken romance," is all Miss Evans will say about her suit.

LOVED THE SEA.

"All my life I have loved the sea," said the pretty Cape Ann girl. "I have seen it in all its moods at Rockport, and I have always wanted to make a voyage. Uncle Bishop, master of the Susan B. kept promising he would take me, my aunt having frequently accompanied him on cruises.

"So I decided to take the trip with them on the schooner from Norfolk, Va., to St. Stephen, N. B., with a cargo of coal. I will never go again.

"We sailed Sunday and I didn't feel any great fear when the storm came on, as I had the utmost confidence in Uncle Bishop. As the storm grew worse I began to get nervous, and when I learned the schooner was sinking and we were ordered into the boat, I was badly frightened. They said I behaved very well, but I was frightened.

UNCLE SAVED.

"The blackest moment of the entire experience, and the one I'll never forget, was when Uncle Bishop fell into the sea in jumping from the schooner to the boat. I thought he was gone, and when Herrod jumped in after him, and catching him by the hair, struggled through the mountainous seas to the boat, where both were pulled aboard, I was so happy I began singing. The long, bitter hours in the open boat were easy to stand after Uncle Bishop had been saved."

her freedom from the courts after a perfunctory proceeding.

Mrs. DeWolfe met Warren G. Harding shortly after he had purchased the Marion Star.

Mrs. Harding from the very start took great interest in her husband's activities—whether in the field of politics or of business.

Then, as the late President began to become known throughout his State, Mrs. Harding turned her attention to politics. Running for Governor of Ohio, however, Mr. Harding lost.

Later Mr. Harding was urged to run for the United States Senate. He left the decision up to his wife. Somewhat discouraged by the Gubernatorial race, it was two days before the politicians could reconcile Mrs. Harding to a return to politics.

Just as she hesitated when the Senatorial nomination was thrust upon her husband, Mrs. Harding again balked when the Presidency was suggested.

Once in the race, nevertheless, Mrs. Harding bent every effort to promote the success of Senator Harding.

It was in an interview, shortly after the election that Mrs. Harding perhaps best expressed her feelings towards her husband.

"I wanted Warren to win because he wanted to," she said, "and for no other reason."

While taking a week-end trip on the yacht Mayflower in 1922, she was stricken with a recurrence of the kidney trouble.

For days Mrs. Harding lay in the White House at the point of death. Many times hope was given up.

Then came the Alaska trip, with its disastrous ending.

Mrs. Harding was at the bedside of her husband in the San Francisco Hotel when the end came. The shock was appalling.

With the passing of the Winter, Mrs. Harding returned to the capital from Marion.

She returned to Marion and later suffered the third serious recurrence of the kidney ailment. A slight rally came just before election day, November 4, 1924, and she was able to receive the returns that showed the election of her husband's old running-mate, President Coolidge.

ers, while his companion stepped forward and deliberately knocked Earl Swartz unconscious with the butt of his pistol.

At this point Mrs. Bertha Swartz, mother of the proprietors, who had been sewing in a room in the rear, appeared at the doorway and screamed. The gunmen fled from the store, leaped into the waiting automobile, and drove away, taking the coats.

Roland N. French saw the bandits running from the store. As he gave chase, he slipped to the street. When he did so he saw a third gunman in the automobile. The man covered French with his revolver until the "get-away."

Meanwhile, Mrs. A. V. Malone, from her front door on Waverly avenue sa wthe gunmen flee. She sent the alarm to the police.

The wounded man was treated by a physician for lacerations to the head and pluckily continued at work.

The brothers were able to furnish no adequate descriptions to the police.

WIFE OF COL. COLLINS ADMITS HER GUILT

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Elsie Christie Benn-Muntz Collins, now said to be living in Nice, France, has filed an answer to the divorce suit brought by Colonel Charles G. Collins, former officer of the British army who made an unsuccessful fight against extradition to India several years ago.

Colonel Collins and Mrs. Muntz, a divorcee, were married here March 12, 1918, the bridegroom being taken from the house of correction, where he was in custody during the legal battle, for the ceremony.

In his petition, Colonel Collins declared his wife had lived with a captain in the Royal Rifle Brigade as his wife in London. Mrs. Collins' answer admitted that her husband's allegations were true.

When Collins was extradited he was charged with having purchased valuable jewels in India with non-collectible notes. He was acquitted.

MAY YOHE, ONCE TOAST OF KINGS, BOWED BY POVERTY IN BOSTON

PURSUED BY DIAMOND HOODOOS

Rose From Penury to Riches; Spurned Marriage Offer Which Carried Title

May Yohe was nearing twenty when she became Lady Francis Hope.

Here we see the pretty Dutch-Indian actress at the time Putnam Bradlee Strong of New York stole her away, and wasted all her fortune. The "Hope diamond" shown also was her possession.

For a time May was alone in the world—misery is memory's closest friend. But—

Here we have her in Boston—the real May Yohe of today—Mrs. Jack Smuts.

From poverty to riches,
And back again.
From oblivion to fame,
And back again.

That, briefly, is the story of May Yohe, once famous actress and the toast of two continents. May Yohe, who once wore the great Hope diamond and who knows its baleful influence.

The gods have reached into a little $5-a-week furnished room in the South End of Boston and dragged May Yohe back into the limelight for a spell. Her husband was shot and the police questioned her. Both say it was an accidental shooting and that the husband, Captain John Smuts, accidentally pulled the trigger while he was cleaning his revolver.

The story of May Yohe and her career is a mighty interesting one. Here it is:

Chapter I.

She is the daughter of a Pennsylvania dressmaker.

It was in Room No. 21 of the Eagle Hotel in Bethlehem, Pa., that May Yohe was born. At that time Bethlehem was a small place and the big steel works hadn't even been thought of. Her father who was of Dutch descent, was a soldier. Her mother was a descendant of a mixture of a fine old English strain on the male side and a woman of the Narragansett Indian tribe.

May Yohe's father died when she was very young and her mother started a dressmaking establishment and before long became the most fashionable dressmaker in Philadelphia. She designed and made all the favorite gowns of some of the most famous theatrical stars of the period, including Mrs. John Drew, Georgia Drew Barrymore, Victoria Creese, Clara Louise Kellog and Marie Van Zandt.

As far back as she can remember, May Yohe wanted to become an actress. She recalls vividly how she broke open her toy bank and took from it money enough to buy her a seat at a performance of a theatrical troupe which played in her home town.

She had been brought up very strictly in the austere faith of the Moravian Church and attendance at the theatre was forbidden.

Of course, she got caught for she went to the show again and again. Her mother scolded her and in the course of the lecture uttered a prediction which May Yohe remembers today as clearly as though it had been told to her but yesterday. This is it:

"Did the theatre give you so much pleasure, child? It may be that it wil give you pain some day."

It wasn't long afterwards that May Yohe was thrown from a horse while participating in what she describes as "a sort of Wild West children's circus." An old gypsy woman found her lying in a hedge more dead than alive and carried her home.

The gypsy told her fortune later and foretold her life exactly as it has been, she says.

She told the embryo actress that she would some day have a fortune at her feet and kick it away like a plaything. She predicted trouble and suffering and sorrow for her.

Chapter II.

May was a good bit of a tomboy when she was a child and when she was ten years old, her mother, at the advice of friends, sent her off to school in Dresden. At the school, where she stayed for the entire four years' course, she met the little daughters of some of America's best-known families.

Especially friendly was she with Louise Corbin "of the Long Island Corbins," Edith Coowise of Boston and Edith, Lulu and Mamie, the famous Patton sisters of Washington, D. C.

At the school May learned to talk, read and write German and French and was thoroughly schooled, too, in the duties of a housewife.

On one occasion when tableaux were staged by the pupils May and a chum decided to do something "devilish" in contrast to the sedate roles enacted by their friends. And so they fashioned, by cutting up silk stockings, two pairs of tights, and with white shirt waists and trunks made from red silk petticoats. The costumes created a sensation and almost resulted in the expulsion of the two daring youngsters.

After Dresden, May was sent to Mme. Bronler's School in the Rue de Passy, Paris. She spent two terms there and then sailed home to America. Her mother had hopes that she would become a fashionable governess or an instructor of music.

But May was determoined to go on the stage.

Quite unexpectedly she was asked to sing a solo in church and agreed to do so. She was astonished at the effect her singing had on the congregation.

"The people all turned and looked at me, as I sang," she says, "and it set me thinking that if the public would stare like that in a church they would pay to hear me sing on the stage."

May continued to sing in the church until the minister, indignant because she developed a habit of slipping out during his sermons told her that she needn't sing if she couldn't arrange to sit through the sermons.

Chapter III.

It was through Mrs. John Drew, that May got an opportunity to appear before a real theatvical manager.

Mrs. Drew went to her home to order some new gowns and while she waited in the drawing room, May mustered up courage and told her of her stage aspirations. Mrs. Drew was interested and told the child to learn a dramatic poem which would give her an opportunity to display her intrepretive ability.

In her hotel suite, Mrs. Drew gave May a "hearing" and when the poem had been recited she told her:

"If you work hard, I don't see why you shouldn't win on the stage, but remember it is work, work, work. If you're afraid of hard labor keep away from the footlights."

Mrs. Drew gave her letters of introduction to two big New York theatrical managers, Augustin Daly and A. M. Palmer. The latter promised her $9 a week and Mr. Daly didn't hold out much more inducement, so back to Philadelphia she went, believing herself defeated.

Then John Russell, the actor-manager, went to Philadelphia with a company. He was producing a musical comedy called "Natural Gas." The leading lady, Miss Jeannie Yeamans, became ill and when May Yohe heard that Russell wanted some one to understudy her she went and saw him. For him she sang Tosti's "Bid Me Good-bye and Go," and he offered her an engagement then and there at $60 a week. Needless to say, she accepted.

"When John Russell said I was engaged and that my salary would be sixty dollars a week," says May, "I wouldn't have traded places with Queen Victoria."

Rapid indeed was the success which greeted the young actress. The morning after her first appearance she was acclaimed as a star and at the end of the run of "Natural Gas" she signed up to play in "The Crystal Slipper" at $200 a week—real money in those days.

And this was the dressmaker's daughter who never in her life had had a singing lesson.

Chapter IV.

May toured the country with "The Crystal Slipper" and won friends and admirers at every stand.

Indeed many men fell in love with the graceful and charming young singer.

"Did I ever have any lovers when I was on the stage?" said May today, repeating an inquiry. "Of course I did, and I always say so quite frankly, but always I am careful to add that almost never in my life has any man made me the object of his attentions without asking me to marry him. Yes, scores of men have fallen in love with me. I say so, not with pride, but just as a statement of fact, and I must add that with one exception my experience with men has been such as to leave me only pleasant memories."

The exception is Putnam Bradlee Strong, son of New York City's ex-Mayor, with whom May eloped to the Orient when she was Lady Francis Hope.

"I could have made good marriages in the early days of my career," says May Yohe. "After

ACTOR, SOUGHT AS SWINDLER, ARRESTED

Man Wanted in Plymouth Theatre Confidence Game Seized in Texas

Nell McConlogue, 28, alleged to be the super-crook who impersonated Grant Mitchell in Boston, some months ago and came near swindling the Plymouth theatre of $750, is under arrest in San Antonio.

McConlogue, who, the police say, has many aliases, and who is said to be a clever forger, an actor, short story writer and medical student, has been trailed across the country by Burns detectives for many weeks. Warrants are out for the young man's arrest in many cities and it is unlikely he ever will be brought to Boston for trial.

SHOOTING REVEALS PLIGHT OF MAY YOHE

wards when I became the victim of young Strong, after having been Lady Francis Hope with all the wonderful things that went with the title, I was very sorry, oh, very, very sorry that I had not taken advantage of some of the opportunities that came to me, for I am sure that I could have learned to love very deeply some of the men who wanted to marry me in those days of my first successes on the stage.

Chapter V.

May Yohe is still sensitive because some of the public thinks that her marriage to Lord Francis Hope was "a piece of stage strategy." She says that her marriage was the result of the "magic wand of romance waving over me."

Here is her own account of their meeting:

"One afternoon I was driving in Central Park when three young men, walking at the edge of the road, came abreast of us. Each of them wore tan walking boots. They were a curiosity in the States then and I could not help looking closely at the three pairs of feet and the young men who owned them.

"One of the trio caught me staring at him and, raising his hat, smiled at me. It was a pleasant, frank, genial smile, in which I could find no cause for offense.

"Well, to make a long story short, the same man was my dinner partner that evening at a smart dinner in old Delmonico's. He was introduced to me as plain Mr. Hope. It was not until a long time later, when I was engaged to marry him that I learned his title."

After May Yohe had opened in London in "The Magic Opal," in a theatre bought for her by Lord Francis Hope, he invited her to his shooting box for the week-end.

"It was after we returned that our engagement was formally announced. But few knew just what Lord Francis and I had agreed on. He asked me if I would be angry with him if he asked me to marry him in a peculiar way. His plan was for a probation marriage of five months. If at the end of that time I still loved him we were to be married formally.

"If, on the other hand, I had found someone I liked better I could leave and forget him.

"Well, the five months passed and we were married. My eighteenth birthday came during the five months and I received a $350,000 necklace from Lord Francis."

It was when she was formally introduced to London society as the wife of Lord Francis Hope that May Yohe first wore the great Hope diamond.

Chapter VI.

All went well until Putnam Bradlee Strong, son of New York's former mayor, entered her life. Now, May Yohe describes him as a "cosmopolitan and roue." But then, she was fascinated by him.

"I went with him," she says, "to the ends of the earth, sacrificing everything that a woman holds dear, only to learn that it was all a clever game, that Captain Strong wanted not me, but my half a million dollars worth of jewelry."

Captain Strong succeeded in pawning most of May's jewels. Later Lord Francis Hope gave her her divorce and she divorced Strong in Oregon City and went to California.

Chapter VII.

She met Captain John Smuts, cousin of the famous Boer general, Jan Smuts. After a swift courtship he married her.

But Captain Smuts was poor and when the pair came to America he tried to re-enlist in the British army but was refused.

"We were broke," says May. "It was no new experience for me, but my husband was not strong and he was it a strange country. I left him in Seattle and went to San Francisco to seek engagements. For a time I was succesful. Then one day I got a letter from him telling me he had found a way to do his bit." This was during the war. The Mayor of Seattle had issued a proclamation calling upon citizens to take their places in the shipyards.

"Captain Smuts got a job as a laborer in the yards. He came home to me each evening very dirty and tired, but he found a hot dinner waiting for him, cooked by May Yohe, who once had owned the Hope diamond and who might have been a duchess."

Then came a day when Captain Smuts was taken sick. He was ill for twelve weeks and May Yohe got a job as a scrubwoman to earn money that they might eat.

Subsequently they came East again and opened a roadhouse which they called "The Blue Diamond," up in New Hampshire. The ill luck that followed those who have worn the Hope diamond, pursued them. First they ran afoul of the prohibition laws. Then incendiaries set fire to their little establishment and it was destroyed with all its furnishings.

They have made their home here since the early part of this month.

"Saturday nights we go to the movies and Sundays we take long walks hand in hand," says May. "And Mrs. John Smuts is happier than May Yohe ever was and prouder than she would have been sitting at the head of the banquet table at Newcastle, with a hundred servants to call her, 'Your Grace.'"

Life is funny, that way.

Smuts Getting Better; Police to Drop Case

With Captain John Smuts, husband of May Yohe of Houpe diamond fame, recovering at the City Hospital from a bullet wound in his chest and abdomen, police have practically abandoned the case.

Smuts was shot in the $5-a-week furnished room the couple occupy at No. 129 West Concord street, South End. Both Smuts and his wife declare the shooting was accidental and occurred while the Captain was cleaning a revolver.

The police, after hearing the story of Smuts and his wife and finding a suicide note in the room, purporting to have been written by Smuts, are skeptical of the explanation of the accident. No charges have been brought in the case, however, and as far as the police are concerned, the matter will be dropped, should Smuts recover.

The name of the injured man has been taken fr omthe danger list at the hospital and he will be about in a few days unless complications develop.

FIREMEN JACK STREET CAR OFF GIRL

Recover Body of Anna Grolnic, 8, Killed When Struck in Washington Street

Anna Grolnic, eight years old, only girl in the family of eight children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grolnic, of No. 230 Dover street, South End, was killed when struck by an L car in Washington street, near Dover street.

Pedestrians summoned a nearby fire engine and the crew were compelled to jack up the street car before the child's body could be removed.

The child was returning from the home of a playmate, Rachel Rosenberg, accompanied by the other girl and her brother, Julius. As they reached Washington street, a car driven by Motorman Dennis O'Callahan, of No. 12 Washington street, Roxbury, approached. The children started to cross the street, but O'Callahan rang the bell. Anna broke away from her friends and ran directly into the path of the car. She was dragged about 20 feet and instantly killed.

O'Callahan fainted when he learned the girl was dead and an inspector had to drive the car to its destination. Eye-witnesses absolved him from blame for the accident. He will appear in court, but no charge has been preferred against him.

MOTHER ASKS AID IN FINDING DAUGHTER

Mary A. Foley, 16, Missing From Home Since Friday, Is Sought by Parents

A distracted mother has appealed to the Boston American to help find her daughter who had been missing from home since Friday.

Mary A. Foley, sixteen, a high school student of No. 407 Columbus avenue, packed up a few belongings and slipped from her home sometime Friday night. When her mother went to call her Saturday morning the room was empty, but the bed showed signs of having been slept in. Constant search by relatives and friends has failed to result in any clew to the girl's whereabouts.

Mary was a quiet girl, according to her mother, much given to home life and no reason for her departure can be given. She had no sweethearts, her mother says.

Mary is five feet three inches tall and weighs 113 pounds. She has dark brown hair and brown eyes. When last seen she wore a light brown sport jacket with flute fur collar and cuffs ,black satin shoes and flesh colored stockings.

Women run the biggest business in the world

AGES AGO—before railroads, steel factories, automobiles, or oil fields were ever heard of—the great industry of Housekeeping was flourishing—each Home a business in itself—run by its Manager, the wife and mother.

This wonderful business of Home Management has always "hidden its light under a bushel"—never has it had the publicity its importance warranted.

While steel, and railroads, and automobiles, and oil have been shouted about and advertised—and ranked above or below each other in the list of famous industries—women (Home Managers) have been content to remain modestly behind the scenes—and do their work efficiently and economically—without hullabaloo about what rank their combined power would give them, if known, in the world of industry.

Forgetting, for a moment, all nations but our own—please let your imagination dwell upon the amount of capital controlled by Managers of the 20-million homes in the United States.

Take up your pencil, Mrs. Home Manager. What does it cost you per annum to run your home?—

Is it $1000? Then 20-million homes times that would make a total of $20,000,000,000.00;

Is it $2000? Then 20-million homes times that would make a total of $40,000,000,000.00;

Is it $3000? Then 20-million homes times that would make a total of $60,000,000,000.00;

Is it $5000? Then 20-million homes times that would make a total of $100,000,000,000.00;

And so on up.

These stupendous figures will give all American women something to be especially proud of — because, taken even at their minimum, they can leave no doubt in any intelligent mind that women run a business which outranks all others, both in national importance and in money volume.

All of which proves that—

By skill in shopping, by a natural instinct for getting her money's worth, by her long-established ability to make pennies go far — woman has won the confidence of "friend husband" to an extent which gives her, in the United States, control over at least 75% of the family income.

Narrowing this great array of nation-wide philosophy down to where you live, we'll close by saying—

Right here in New England—there are nearly 500 BROOKSIDE STORES (one near you) that have helped women to be efficient Home Managers—by providing them with the world's finest groceries at low "Cash and Carry" prices. And, as a result, thrifty New England women have saved millions of dollars on the food necessities and luxuries of life.

Are you one of those women? If not, will you begin being one of them — TODAY?

Woman's

acceptance of values like these have helped to make her the recognized Manager of the world's biggest business—the Home.

RHINELANDER AND HIS BRIDE TO PART

Family Offers Cash, Is Report; Lie About Race, Is Charged

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 21 (Universal).—The first steps to dissolve the marriage of Leonard Kip Rhinelander and his bride Alice Beatrice Jones was taken at a conference today between the Rhinelanders' attorneys and representatives of the bride, Universal Service is authoritatively informed.

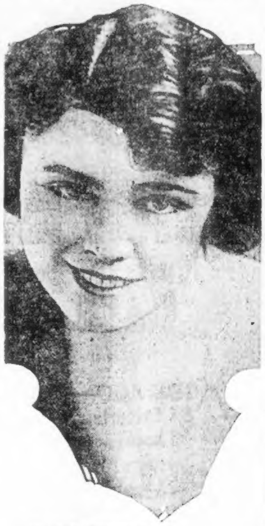
Mrs. Kip will be offered a large sum of money to allow her husband to return home to the Rhinelander home, it was stated, and she is reported to be in a receptive mood.

After a separation of a few months steps will be taken to have the marriage annulled, or to obtain a divorce, on the plea that the bride misrepresented her color when she swore in her application for a marriage license that she was white.

She will be told, it was asserted, that if she does not agree to these terms, Kip will be cut off by the family, and that he will never receive a penny of the Rhinelander fortune. In the meantime the young couple are still in seclusion in the Jones home here.

Dale Winter Wins Her Heart's Desire

Once unknown singer in Colosimo's Cafe in Chicago. She was known as "the squarest little guy who ever hit the town." Dale Winter induced Colosimo to go straight. Then he was slain and she went to New York. She won almost a magical musical success in comedy success.



DALE WINTER

Dale Winter has found Rainbow's End.

The beautiful young American girl, who was an unknown singer in one of Chicago's most picturesque night life resorts—Jim Colosimo's place—has found happiness in marriage. Her wedding occurred in San Francisco. The news has just reached here. Her husband is Henry Duffy, the actor.

And the news of the romance will bring up ghosts in Chicago's underworld.

Out in Chicago, on the South Side, they won't pay many tributes to a good woman. But—

"The squarest little guy who ever hit the town."

That's what they all said of Dale Winter after the death of Jim Colosimo, king of the underworld, boss of a daring group of criminals.

Dale Winter was Jim Colosimo's wife. His butterfly wife. It turned out that after Jim Colosimo divorced his Italian wife to marry Dale Winter, she exercised a curious influence for good over the big, brutal, bullying resort-keeper.

Then Colosimo announced his decision to go straight.

The underworld shrugged and laughed. Colosimo gave such evidence that he was in earnest that an assassin crept into his office in the cabaret one day and shot the vice czar dead.

Then, Dale Winter, who had been only one of a dozen singers in the cabaret before Jim married her, gave up all the jewels he had showered on her, $40,000 worth; and gave up all the beautiful clothes, and turned over all the money she had saved—to Big Jim's first wife, the faded, wrinkled, stooped woman who had come from Italy years and years before.

Dale Winter went away from Chicago with one suitcase which contained all her worldly possessions.

GRAND JURORS MAY RECEIVE BRIBE FACTS

Boston ward; another is said to be a representative from a downtown Boston ward, while still another of the plotters is well known in a Democratic henchman.

POLITICIANS EXCITED.

There was a rush of well-known professional "pols" from all sections of the city to the Pemberton square courthouse today.

"What's O'Brien to do about this case?

"Think he'll put all 'the boys' on the grill?

"Who're the lads mixed up in this Byer matter?"

These were some of the inquiries heard in the courthouse corridors concerning the district attorney's possible action.

"The boys" it should be explained are those who helped to hold up the walls of the courthouse each day, buttonholing attorneys, police officers, defendants in criminal cases, members of District Attorney O'Brien's staff and others.

It was the opinion of one man close to th edistrict attorney that the whole matter of alleged "fixing" and attempts to "fix" cases will be put before the grand jury for final action.

BYER IN CONFERENCE.

Political pals of the men said to be implicated in the Byer plot were busy about the courthouse today.

Byer was in conference with Prosecutor O'Brien today. Patrolman George McCaffrey of the District Attorney's staff was also present.

At the conclusion of the conference Myer was admonished to go home and keep silent. He was instructed to notify the District Attorney immediately if any person sought to discuss the alleged bribery matter with him or his wife.

THROUGH SLEEPING CAR SERVICE TO FLORIDA

Through sleeping car train service from Boston and New England points to Florida was inaugurated by the New Haven road last Sunday when "The Everglades" made its first trip from South Station. "The Everglades," which is operated via the famous Hell Gate Bridge route, making it unnecessary to transfer across the city of New York from one station to another, proved sufficiently popular last season to warrant its operation again this year.

The train leaves South Station daily at 7:25 p. m., Back Bay at 7:31 p. m. and makes stops on the New Haven at Providence, New London, New Haven and Bridgeport. A through car from Springfield to Jacksonville leaves Springfield at 8:30 p. m. daily, stopping at Hartford and connecting with "The Everglades" at New Haven.

"The Everglades" carries through drawing room sleeping cars between Boston and Miami, Boston and Tampa, Boston and St. Petersburg and Springfield and Jacksonville via the Atlantic Coast Line, and through drawing room sleeping cars between Boston and Jacksonville and Boston and Tampa-St. Petersburg via the Seaboard Air Line.

A $5,000,000 reclamation project, hich has for its object the draining f the marshes between Lynn and evere, and the opening of Lynn as port for the largest ocean steame, is to be started immediately, cording to Mayor Harlan A. McPetres of Lynn.

The Standard Oil Company, the United States Steel Corporation and Henry Ford are said by the Mayor to be among those interested in the project.

The plans call for the building of a breakwater east of the Saugus River, the filling in of the flats and the dredging of the main Lynn ship channel to a depth of thirty-nine feet at mean low tide.

It is claimed that this will make Lynn an important port for ocean vessels, as it will be many hours nearer Boston Light than is the Boston Harbor.

MILK STRIKERS WIN AND GO BACK ON JOB

Seven Hundred Drivers Called Out, but Compromise Is Reached Quickly

A strike of more than 700 milk wagon drivers in Greater Boston was called early today, but after the strikers refused to move their wagons for more than two hours and a half, the strike was compromised with a virtual victory for the men.

The substitution of a commission on business done instead of a straight salary of $38 per week for the drivers was the cause of the strike.

The strike was settled on a compromise. Instead of paying a flat wage of $38 a week to drivers, the company will pay a wage and bonus which will bring the experienced drivers a return of $38 a week. The commission feature is eliminated.

The agreement was reached shortly before 3 o'clock. Meanwhile, thousands of cases of milk and cream were piled up at the various stations. Within fifteen minutes after the agreement was reached the first of the long string of wagons pulled away from a Cambridge station of the Whiting Company.

The only inconvenience suffered by the milk patrons was a slight delay in the delivery of the milk in some sections of Greater Boston.

BRIDE HELD IN DEATH PLEADS FOR LIBERTY

Camden, N. J., Nov. 21.—Protesting innocence of any part in her husband's death, Mrs. Maud Huysl, htirty, a bride of three months, pleaded today with police to release her. She is held at Police headquarters detention room as witness in the death of her husband, Policeman Anthony Huysl. Mrs. Huysl was in the apartment when her husband met hi death. Sobbing hy'terically, immediately after the hooting, she told police her husband shot himself accidentally while threatening her with a revolved, during a quarrel.

Calmer today, Mrs. Huysl still insisted this was the manner of her husband's death. Police said Huysl was killed with a .22-calibre revolver, while his service revolver, of a heavier calibre, was in his holster.

Woman Seriously Hurt at Chichester, N. H.; Three Others Shaken Up

Concord, N. H., Nov. 21.—George Giles of Barnstead was killed and Mrs. Amy Philbrick of Epsom was seriously injured in a collision in Chichester between a touring car and a motor truck. Mrs. Clarence Hanson and two children in the car driven by Giles were badly shaken, the two women and children being brought to the Margaret Pillsbury Hospital in Concord.

Arthur Swain of East Concord, driving a truck, was going in the same direction and ahead of the Giles car. Swain started to turn into a garage on the left side of the road just as Giles speeded up to pass him. Swain said he saw the touring car coming and tried to turn back, but was unable to make it, the Giles car crashing into the rear of the truck.

Giles was killed instantly. Mrs Philbrick had a broken leg.

DENIES SISTER HAS RIGHT TO BRING SUIT

Mrs. Mayall Fights Action of Miss Wellington for Share in Estate

Denial of the rights at law of Miss Violet Irele Wellington, Back Bay elocution teacher, in her suit for $200,000 as a share in her father's estate, has been made by her sister, Mrs. Louise W. Mayall of Oxford, daughter of Charles H. Wellington.

Mrs. Mayall asserts that the allegations made in her sister's suit are based upon matters which occurred six years before the action was begun and because the same allegations have been passed upon by the Superior Court at Worcester and later dismissed by the Supreme Court.

Miss Wellington asserts her sister used undue influence over their father during his illness to get control of his fortune. She claims that when her father became ill he was worth $400,000. Then Mrs. Mayall took charge of his affairs, she says, and within six months she had received bonds valued at $75,000. Later, she charges, the estate dwindled to $300,000.

HOOVER DECIDES TO KEEP CABINET POST

Washington, Nov. 21 (By the Associated Press).—Secretary Hoover has definitely decided various efforts by commercial organizations to obtain his services.

Mr. Hoover made his decision after President Coolidge had earnestly requested that he remain in the service of the government.

Recently gossip about the capital has included Mr. Hoover's name in the list of those members of the President's official family likely to go out of office when the new administration begins on March 4.

Fights Sister's Suit

$200,000 AT STAKE

Mrs. L. W. Mayall (upper), of Oxford, denies right of her sister, Miss Violet I. Wellington, Back Bay elocution teacher, to sue for $200,000 as a share in the estate of their father. Miss Wellington asserts her sister used undue influence to gain control of her father's estate.

DROUGHT TIES UP N. H. MILL TOWNS

Water Famine Also Feared if Rain Fails to Replenish Reservoirs

Concord, N. H., Nov. 21.—Industries throughout New England which depend on water for their power are reporting a serious handicap by the protracted drought.

Contoocook Valley residents report that never has the water been so low as at present. Plants in several towns are running only a few hours a day, due to shortage of power, while others are depending entirely upon auxiliary power.

The water supply of several towns in this district is seriously menaced and fears are expressed that if rain does not come soon, a water famine is impending. Officials of the weather bureau report that October was the driest month in New Hampshire in 107 years.

Let Children Think for Themselves, Says Teacher

Declaring that mothers think for their children altogether too much, and that the children should be forced to do their own thinking, Miss Susan J. Ginn, the director of the department of vocational guidance, outlined a series of principles before a class in social service at Boston College High School, which she believes will help to solve the vocational problem.

Miss Ginn said she knew of no keener psychologians than children. She fears their opinions more than those of older persons.

Children are quick to sense things, and quick to realize them, and present day educators and social workers should realize this factor when attempting to train the child, stated the speaker. It is necessary to make the child see that he wants education, and vocational guidance.

SIR ESME HOWARD URGES GOLDEN RULE FOR NATIONS

New York, Nov. 21.—"The application of the golden rule between individuals or nations would alter the whole of life."

This was the text of a speech made by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador to the United States, at the golden rule dinner of the Near East Relief national committee.

"If we only try to consider each other's difficulties and trials before we judge of the actions of others," he continued, "how much less likely we shall be to be irritable and vexed with what others may say and do."

PERFECT MAN TO BE PRODUCED BY DOCTORS

Regulation of Glands to Make Human About What He Wants to Be

Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—Dr. R. Rodney Fiske of New York told the delegates at the convention of the Eastern Homeopathic Medical Association that recent discoveries concerning the function of glands of the human body had paved the way for production of the "perfect man."

Dr. William H. Diffenback, an X-ray specialist, also of New York, added the assertion that by properly controlling the function of glands a "fountain of youth" will have been discovered. Failure of the glands to function, Dr. Diffenbach said, was the cause of old age.

"By properly regulating man's glands," declared Dr. Fiske, "we shall not only be able to control his mental characteristics, but also his physical appearance. It will be within our power to say whether he shall be tall or short, fat or thin; whether his voice shall be tenor or bass.

"By increasing the action of sluggish glands and slowing down the over-acting glands, remarkable results have been accomplished and we are on the verge of even greater achievements which will make possible the production of the perfect man."

Dr. Diffenbach expressed the opinion that control of the ductless glands was far superior to implantation of monkey glands for the restoration of youth to the aged.

DIVIDES 22 INTO 53 AND COMES OUT EVEN

Faced with the problem of sending 22 policeman to guard the 53 schools Chief of Police Thomas M. Burckes of Lynn appealed to Mayor McPhetres for suggestions as to how it could be done.

After vain attempts to divide 22 into 53, that official recalled that most of the school janitors are special policemen and he directed that they serve as traffic officers during the hours when the children are going to and leaving the public and parochial schools.

Luis said he planned to visit Florida soon.

The Big Game Takes Society to New Haven, Where the Buds Show Their Colors

By BETTY ALDEN

OWING to tomorrow's all-important gridiron affair down New Haven way, the debutante calendar has very little to say for itself today.

So the busy bud—who is far, far busier than the busy bee—will have a brief diversion from the hectic round of festivities which keeps the "first-year" contingent in such a merry whirl.

Next week, however, will find the tireless debbies right back in the thick of things.

Mrs. James C. Hopkins starts the ball rolling with the reception which she gives on Monday at her Marlboro Street home for her niece, Miss Mary Pickering Bush, daughter of Mrs. Henry Sturgis Bush.

Tuesday there's the tea at the Cambridge Boat Club, with Mrs. Willard S. Martin the hostess for Miss Lucile Close.

Friday, as usual, is somewhat of a "double-header." The tea which Mrs. Frederic C. Bowditch of Brookline is giving for her daughter Margaret, will occupy the attention of the buds during the afternoon, while the dance which Mr. and Mrs. John Bryant Paine of Weston are giving for Miss Carol Paine will fill the evening hours most pleasantly.

On Saturday afternoon comes the "at home" which Mrs. Oscar Iasigi is giving at the Chilton Club to present her granddaughter, Miss Margaret Grannis. The latter is the daughter of Mrs. Arthur Grannis (Anne Iasigi) and one of the more prominent debutantes elected to the Junior League this Fall.

MISS GWENDOLYN FARMER
(Photo by Bachrach.)

Brookline girl who will be heard and seen in the chorus of "The Arcadians," the musical show which the Junior League is presenting at the Copley Theatre on December 8, 9 and 10.

VERILY does the old give way to the new—especially in the way of domiciles.

Not so many years ago society would have lifted its hands in horror at the idea of giving up its splendid mansions and moving into apartments.

Now you'll find that along Beacon Street and Commonwealth Avenue many of the fine old houses have been converted into several apartments, and instead of housing one family they house perhaps three or four, according to their size.

The other evening in New York, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton gave a large private dance at their residence on East Ninety-Second Street. It was in the nature of a farewell party, as the Huttons are shortly to set up their lares et penates in an apartment.

Among the many guests were Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Nelson Slater, and Harold S. Vanderbilt, who's better known to his North Shore friends as just plain "Mike."

The splendid entrance hall, grand staircase, ballroom and dining room of the Hutton mansion were beautifully decorated for the occasion with pompoms, small yellow and white chrysanthemums, fernery and palm and bay trees. There was general dancing, and at midnight supper was served at small tables.

The throng of fashionable folk who last year attended the opening performance in Boston of "Little Old New York," in which Miss Marion Davies played the principal role, are looking forward to Monday evening, when Miss Davies' latest photoplay, "Janice Meredith," opens at the Majestic Theatre.

Those who saw Miss Davies play the role of the winsome little Irish girl in "Little Old New York" are anticipating seeing her enact the role of [illegible]ly fascinating heroine of stirring Revolutionary days.

YOU can get analyzed almost any way you like these days.

There's psycho-analysis for instance, or your dreams, which will lay bare the secret of your soul to some profound folk.

But if you happened to drop in at the bazaar held this week at the Copley-Plaza for the Florence Crittendon League, there was a gentle[illegible] the corner who either flattered or embarrassed you by telling all about your character from your handwriting and the lines of your face.

There also was a lady who looked you over and then told you exactly what colors you should or shouldn't wear.

There were plenty of other things at the bazaar, of course. Among the many other "shoppes," there was a Goodie Shoppe and a Toy Shoppe while one group of matrons had called their booth My Lady's Boudoir. Also, there was a style show, put on by Jordan Marsh Company.

On the committee for the bazaar, an annual event, were Mrs. Guy W. Currier, Mrs. George R. Fearing, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Mrs. Robert F. Herrick and Miss Ruth Chapin. A host of prominent matrons were among the sponsors.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES H. W. FOSTER of "Castle Farm," Charles River Village, have concluded their stay at Hot Springs.

Miss Natalie Winslow of Boston, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cameron McR. Winslow, was present at the dinner given the other evening at Pierre's in New York by Aymar Johnson, in honor of his fiancee, Miss Marian K. Hoffman, daughter of Mrs. Charles Frederick Hoffman.

Mrs. Daniel B. Fearing of Newport is making an indefinite stay at the Roosevelt in New York.

Mrs. George Warren of Boston is visiting Mrs. Townsend Morgan and the latter's daughter, Miss Gertrude deL. Watts of New York.

United States Senator and Mrs. Walter E. Edge are staying at the Shoreham while the home at the capital is being made ready for occupancy.

Miss Katherine Fay, of the Boston colony at Hot Springs, attended the tea given there the other day by Mrs. Lawrence Cobb for Mrs. Henry P. Gardner.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys With Jad Salts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, begin drinking [illegible] [illegible] ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

CUDDY BRINGS SWAMPSCOTT TO FORE AGAIN

By FRED C. LANE.

Back in 1919 when Coach Charlie Cuddy was leading the destinies of Swampscott High's football team the [illegible] that made up the grid eleven that year walked off with the North Shore League pennant. Better offers were made to the mentor after that feat and he changed his position and [illegible]

[illegible] goal level.

GATHERING IN THE FRUITS

In 1923 he was at the head of the team and [illegible] The majority of [illegible] that season were green and [illegible] with the rudiments of the game.

He worked diligently [illegible] gathering the fruits of his work this year.

With no more league games to [illegible] Swampscott High is again on top of the pile.

[illegible] the driver's seat [illegible] a position [illegible] Lynn Classical are a point [illegible] Swampscott at the present time.

[illegible] beat Chelsea on Sat[illegible] would change the complexion of things.

In all probability Chelsea will feel the pangs of defeat. Peabody is a better team both on the offensive and defence. There is some doubt about Lynn Classical chances for as humble as Lynn English has been they have come along fast the past month and may upset the predictions of the experts.

CUDDY HAS WORKED HARD.

Coach Cuddy has had to work exceptionally hard to accomplish what he has. The ordinary coach would [illegible] over a similar predicament. The student body at Swampscott is the smallest of any high school in the North Shore League.

Only 137 boys are listed in the [illegible] roster and of that number [illegible] 35 came out for football. Coach Cuddy's past experience as a football [illegible] served him well for he was acquainted with what the lads that went to Swampscott could do and the result we have told.

The majority of the boys that brought honors to Swampscott this season are eligible for next season's campaign. The possibilities look bright for Coach Cuddy to repeat again next season.

YALE SHOULD BEAT HARVARD AFTER HARD, STURDY BATTLE

CRIPPLES BACK IN LINEUP

By NICK FLATLEY.

HARVARD'S last-minute con[illegible] on the eve of [illegible] [illegible] and the gamblers don't know what [illegible]. The strange new spirit [illegible] Cambridge when the [illegible] Wednesday [illegible]

NOW the strange thing about this [illegible] But the impression is out that the Crimson is going to revive, is going to give Yale "hell" as they [illegible]

[illegible] players have been steered into [illegible] mind to do their best, to give the last kick, to put everything into each play and forget what's ahead. That same notion has won many a hopeless cause on the Fall field.

T[illegible] into Yale in 1908 [illegible] side lines and dropkicked the only score of the fray. That was such a thriller that President Roosevelt, Harvard rooter, sent letters of congratulation to the two player heroes.

THE same general fighting hope and heart that won that victory in those far-off days is believed [illegible] Yale fumbles and Crimson recoveries that will mean victory. The "pressure" is bearing down on Yale and lifting Harvard out of the canyons of despair. That's the way the game is being sized up along about now, and causing every Harvard man in reaching distance to set out for the Bowl. Yale will not be affected by the mental assault, of course, but every son of John hopes and prays that the Fisherman will be hoisted into the realms of the great for the vital couple of hours that are to be tomorrow's football game.

GETTING down to concrete facts, Yale should win that football game. This is the worst year on record to pick em, but you can't help [illegible] the advance chapters to the [illegible]. It will be a hard bitter game between two teams that haven't any widely varied means of assault. Yale has a great defense, and Harvard hopes for the same. The team that can outfight the other will win. In case of a draw in the battle [illegible] the team [illegible] the most class will come through. And that team is Yale's, with proper trepidation we venture to remark that Yale will probably win, by a small score, after a tussle that's likely to go down on the annals.

SOME of the Harvard cripples will be back for the opening blast, but the convalescents will hardly go the whole distance. As things shape up now, George Hammond and Miller [illegible] the field, with Stafford calling the plays. The big assault may get a flying start. The jump would mean a lot. Then the boys who did so well against Brown, Maher and Styles, could be chased in to finish the string out. Fisher may send in the reserves at opening and save the regulars for a sudden blasting assault if the opportunity offers. But the game is a big gamble for Coach Robert and he will probably play his best cards first.

THE New Haven cotillion is the only game of major proportions in the East. While [illegible] A few years ago it was the only large game of the year. Now there are [illegible] every Saturday, three or four of them [illegible] proper to [illegible] the decks for [illegible] big football day.

will not warp

For better DX work--- Celoron panels

YOU will get better results if your instruments are mounted on a panel of Celoron bakelite, the ideal insulating material. Celoron never sags, warps or buckles. It furnishes thorough, leak-proof insulation.

Celoron does not soften with heat or deteriorate with age as do rubber panels

Celoron Panels have been adopted as standard by leading set makers and they are used by radio experts all over the country

Celoron is the right panel for you, too.

Celoron comes in eight panel sizes and in sheets, rods and tubes. There are four beautiful finishes—gloss black, a dull mat black, mahogany, and walnut.

The more you expect of your radio set the more you need a Celoron Panel

WHEN you buy a kit, when you build a set, mount it in the first and only bakelite cabinet — the new Vulcawood Cabinet. Ask your dealer to show you one.

Hear Them All!

A comparative tone test is a daring offer -so many things enter into radio tone. But it is a test that any RCA dealer will make. Hear a Radiola Loudspeaker—and you will want it. Hear it in competition with others, and you will insist upon it. The difference is in the construction, but what counts is the result—difference in tone.

By finding a way to make a speaker that adds no vibrations of its own—and at the same time has so wide a tone range that it loses nothing of the music and speech, science has developed in the Radiola Loudspeaker the way to fill a room with voices as real as the artist's, hundreds of miles away. Ask for a comparative test today.

The Black Iron Stove Polish Company

Dear Sirs:

Black Iron Stove Polish is the best stove polish on the market. It speaks for itself. It is an old saying that experience is the best teacher. [illegible] eight years use of Black Iron Stove Polish [illegible] other.

It keeps [illegible] stove [illegible] the manufacturer. One lady asked me what kind of polish I used on my stove. I told her Black Iron. She then remarked: "You can't use your stove very much to keep it looking like that."

Another friend of mine who was present at the time told her that the stove had been in steady use for ten years. The first lady would not believe this possible.

I have had company to the house and they all say: "I just love to look at your stove." Another of my friends took two bottles home to New Hampshire with her, so I feel quite proud of Black Iron Stove Polish.

Sincerely yours,

"Oh Lord—if I've made a mistake. [illegible] garden."

"Have you just started here?"

"Just a week ago today."

"May I taste your cider?"

"Of course."

[illegible] ing business [illegible] time thinking [illegible] into Allen's [illegible] far nothing had [illegible] "Maybe [illegible]" Miss Smith [illegible] taken [illegible] less future. It still [illegible] like a [illegible] It ought to [illegible] When [illegible] reason [illegible] Well, hang on [illegible] let it yet."

Allen [illegible] Clay off and [illegible] desk.

"Mr. Heath?"

"Yes."

"I [illegible] help hearing [illegible] what you said to Mr. W[illegible]. If it [illegible] I'd rather not take [illegible] for a while."

Mighty Decent.

"That's mighty decent of you, but [illegible] possibly let you do that."

"But—" she insisted.

"No 'buts,' even though I appreciate your thoughtfulness."

They laughed together and in some way established a new status between them. Miss Smith came out of her shell. She [illegible] and [illegible] encouraged. Clay privately dubbed her "the ray of sunshine." And now Allen wanted to succeed more than ever though it seemed as if nobody could be induced to have the slightest inclination toward cider.

Then suddenly out of a clear sky came orders—a veritable flood. Allen couldn't believe his eyes. One day's luck perhaps—but no! The next day, and the next—more orders.

Miss Smith went back into her shell. Her coolness and silence dampened Allen's enthusiasm. Clay, with an utter disregard of both, seemed immensely pleased with himself. He wore that irritating "everything will be all right" expression.

One morning Miss Smith was busy when the telephone rang. Allen answered.

"Ye Cider House. Yes. Mr. Simmons—[illegible] Lakeview. I'll have it up right away. Thank you."

Startled Expression.

Miss Smith looked up with a startled expression.

"I heard that order."

"I'm sure you did."

"Mr. Heath—oh, please don't send it."

"I don't understand—"

"Just don't send it—I can't explain."

"I don't understand——"

"I don't think you want me to send any orders. For some reason you don't want me to succeed. I'm sorry, Miss Smith, but I must send it."

"It isn't that—oh," she grabbed her hat and was gone. Allen stood helpless, desolated.

Miss Smith had most effectively disappeared. There was no trace of her. Clay told Allen he was the worst kind of chump not to have gotten her address. Allen admitted it, but——!

Meanwhile business prospered, was beginning to be established on a real basis. What difference did it make now, without Miss Smith? An indefinite young man tried to take her place.

It was a pleasant morning two weeks later. Allan was down early, the indefinite young man was out on a long errand. Allan liked to imagine Miss Smith back, her dark head bent over her work. Suddenly, like a vision, Miss Smith herself appeared. The same lovely, tailored Miss Smith, though different, too. Intensely agitated, breathless.

To Warn Her.

"I came to warn you—and to confess——"

"Oh, Miss Smith!"

"Please listen—your place is going to be investigated today."

"I don't understand——"

"Boot-legging."

"Not guilty," he laughed, "let them investigate."

"Oh, I'm glad."

"How do you know all this?"

"That's a confession. You'll probably hate me—— I—I've been just a spy."

"For what?"

"You see, my uncle is John Simmons, the big prohibition man. He's also my guardian. We live in Mississippi, but he had to come here to do some work and I came along. When your place opened, he asked me if I'd like to do a little investigation of my own. It sounded exciting, so I came, but I—I didn't know—I told him it was all right—I thought it was, until all those orders came pouring in and lots of new rumors. The order I asked you not to send was for my uncle—don't you see?"

Really Did Care

"Then you—really did care?"

"I—I was [illegible]"

"Miss [illegible] what is your [illegible]"

"[illegible] Simmons."

[illegible]

"Yes," Allan murmured, "After we're raided we are going down to look at a ring."

"Well, I came to tell that's off [illegible] fixed it myself."

"Good, old boy, but I would [illegible] where they got those bottles [illegible] in the first place [illegible] ing to it."

"[illegible] worked."

"Worked?"

"Yes, worked [illegible] mance were [illegible] I saved the [illegible] of cider. I want to [illegible] best man as reward."

"You shall," Ellen held out her hand.

"My [illegible] was with my [illegible] but he [illegible]"

Then Allan had to [illegible]

"And if you leave [illegible] in a warm place [illegible] it gets a tang." Clay [illegible] The other two did not hear him.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE

By Sol Vitt

TODAY'S twister is an interesting cross word puzzle for fans. The words are common—you use 75 per cent. of them every day yourself. But it's the way they interlock that causes the fun.

A "tip" to the puzzle published below will be printed in tomorrow's paper. Here is the "tip" to yesterday's. No. 12 Horizontal—"gasp"—is Arose, and No. 9 Vertical—"impede by"—is Estop.

Now that that's straightened out, try today's. The synonyms, horizontal and vertical, are printed below. The stenographer did it in 20 minutes. Can you?

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

AFTER Methuselah went to all the trouble to be 969 years old, a college professor now claims that he only reached eighty. It looks like Methuselah lived 889 years for nothing.

IT'S a shame to wait this long before you call a man a liar.

WHEN Methuselah was eighty years old he was still wearing rompers.

HE didn't put on long pants until he was seventy.

SOME people think that he was married, but he wasn't. He was a bachelor. That's why he lived so long.

HE went with a girl for 208 years until his grandfather made him break the engagement.

HE thought Methuselah was too young to get married and said he should wait till he was five hundred.

THIS college professor is crazy; it took Methuselah 324 years alone to raise his beard.

AND it finally got so long that he had to spend nine years shaving it off.

METHUSELAH worked for two hundred years at the same job and then quit because he was afraid it wasn't going to be permanent.

AT that time he was a young man of 400 and was looking out for the future.

HE wanted to assure himself of a good income by the time he got old.

At 250 he was one of the freshest kids in the neighborhood.

IT took him 145 years to break himself of shooting craps and running around with women.

HE went to grammar school, but was so dumb that he spent 27 years in the sixth grade.

BY the time he was graduated, fourteen principals and twenty-two teachers had died of old age.

ACCORDING to statistics, he and Santa Claus went to school together.

KRIS Kringle has been giving away presents every December for over 1,200 years and the next thing we know, this college professor will come out with a statement that Santa Claus is only 45.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney,
Boston Health Commissioner.

THERE are certain little ailments in children that are looked upon as trivial and are too frequently dismissed without attention.

Dr. Mahoney

They are really friendly danger signals that nature gives you to let you know that something may happen of a really serious character.

These danger signals are never trivial when considered in the light of their possible significance.

Thus the sniffles—a trifling excess of secretion in the nose with possible sneezing—may be only a transient infection that we call a cold. It may disappear after a warm bath and a night's rest. But if it hangs on day after day, it is an evidence that there is an infection located somewhere in the nose and the condition should be very carefully investigated.

Frequent bleeding of the nose in children generally indicates the presence of adenoids which should be located and removed.

Red and watering eyes generally mean infection of the little membrane lining of the lids and covers the front part of the eyeball. This is especially true if the eyelids are stuck together in the mornings. An infection of this kind can be carried from the eyes of one person to those of another. For this reason a child thus afflicted should have its individual towels and washrags and washbowl, and care should be taken that the germs are not carried from his or her eyes to that of other members of the family or associates. This condition calls for examination and treatment without delay.

Some children are of a nervous temperament and naturally restless. In such cases the restlessness or nervousness is not generally an important sympton. But when it occurs in a child that is not nervous, it may be the beginning of a chain of conditions that may result in more serious complications. For this reason it should be looked into without delay.

A child under six years of age should have from one to three normal evacuations every twenty-four hours. When there is a habitual departure from this standard, either in the direction of a diarrhoea or a constipation, there is something wrong and that something may go on to a serious compromise of the child's health. It is needless to say that actual aches—eyeache, earache, headache and all similar aches should be investigated without delay.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

I am not a resident of Boston. Please tell me what hospital I could go to for nose and throat examination.
J. A. R.

The Massachusetts General Hospital, Fruit St., would be the best place for you to go.

My blood must be very thin as my hands are always cold. What do you advise?
F. B. S.
Portsmouth, R. I.

Am sorry that I cannot advise you without more particulars about your diet, etc. Perhaps it would be a good plan to consult your family physician.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The quickest and surest way to nip in the bud the business and employment prosperity now setting in would be to start forcing up prices and wages recklessly.

* * *

Prices have already begun to rise. Irving Fisher reports an advance in wholesale prices of 2½ per cent during the week ended November 15, to the highest level touched since the first week of the year. Dun's records a rise during October of 1½ per cent, and Bradstreet's a still greater advance, almost 2¾ per cent, to a new high mark for the year. The latest weekly record of food prices, issued by Bradstreet's, reveals a rise of 2½ per cent over the previous week.

* * *

Just how far has the upward movement gone from the low point of the year? Dun's minimum was reached on June 1, and this agency shows an advance since then of 5⅛ per cent. Bradstreet's low point was touched on July 1, and its figures have advanced no less than 9 per cent since then. Fisher's compilation shows an advance since mid-year of fully 7½ per cent.

* * *

The same rising tendency in the cost of living is under way in the principal European countries.

The price level in Britain has just touched the highest peak in three years. The advance during the current year has been 11½ per cent.

The German government has been striving to make people believe that the cost of living there has not been rising, and it has made a cut of one-half of one per cent. in the sales tax to two per cent. But the public claims that the cost of living has been going up.

France has been worried by the same problem, and drastic measures have been threatened and sometimes taken to allay popular discontent.

Italy experiences a 10 per cent rise in commodity prices during September, following a rise of 6 per cent. in the previous month.

From America's point of view it is well that the rise in the cost of living here is being matched abroad. Production costs here are already so high that it is questioned whether this country will be able to meet European competition successfully in world markets once Europe gets back into its proper stride.

My own humble opinion is that things can be so managed in this country, by the exercise of common sense by employers and workers alike, that the United States will be able to hold its own fairly well against foreign competition.

This can be set down as certain: Unnecessary marking up of prices will cause labor troubles.

Some employers glibly brush aside such a warning with some such remark as, "American workers are so much better off than they ever were before that they can stand a rise in the cost of living without having to be given more pay."

True, all calculations and compilations show that the standard of living of American wage earners is distinctly higher than it was before the war. In other words, our workers today enjoy the greatest purchasing power they have ever known.

The National Industrial Conference Board recently issued a statement to show that the purchasing power of a day's wages is one-third more than at the outbreak of the war and somewhat better than when wages were at their peak in 1920.

But why shouldn't the wages and living conditions of our working people be better now than they were ten years ago? Of course, we have had to shoulder an enormous increase in our public debts on account of the World War. But think of the increase during the last ten years in the invention and adoption of labor-saving machinery, the improvement in managerial efficiency and the advantages this country has reaped in foreign markets owing to the grave crippling of European competitors.

* * *

The nub of the whole matter is this: We should enjoy a period of both business and labor prosperity. But if sellers start marking up prices unduly, workers unquestionably will demand higher wages, with the upshot that our spell of prosperity will be gravely endangered and European nations will be able to outbid us in world markets.

FEWER 'BUCKET SHOPS' HELP MARKET

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

One big stock market authority tells me he believes the reason the stock market has been able to achieve its remarkable post-election rise with the aid of perhaps a tenth of what might be called the normal public participation is because of the general closing of the "bucket shops."

Certainly some large establishments where orders were filled "on the cuff," as the saying goes, have been put out of business since the last post-election market.

Incidentally, this authority's theory appears as good as any to account for the rapid rise in at least a few of the issues where advances would otherwise be likely to mystify almost everyone.

They say that in Wall street the unexpected is what frequently happens. That is perhaps only another way of telling us that occasionally the manipulators do the very thing that is expected, simply because we think nothing so obvious would be permitted to happen.

In urging people to do business with a certain fire insurance company, I notice one Boston agent uses a window placard promising "generous adjustment" in the event of loss. It does not appear to the writer that our fire insurance companies will sanction this form of solicitation. When one takes out fire insurance, he pays a definite sum for a definite amount of protection. It seems hardly proper for "generosity" to figure in the adjustment of claims, which should be—and, I think, generally are—settled on the basis of simple justice.

A member of the so-called "public" which is now in control of the stock market entered a brokerage house yesterday and told his broker he thought Sloss-Sheffield a good buy.

"What makes you think Sloss-Sheffield is a buy?" asked the broker.

"Why," answered the prospective buyer, "my wife used to pay 6 cents a quart for milk. Now she is paying 9 cents. The company must be taking tremendous profits!"

Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company is the full name of the company known as "Sloss-Sheffield." There is a Sheffield Farms Company which is in the milk business.

Copper and Brass Research Association furnishes me this interesting item:

The Natalie, French sloop on which in 1815 Napoleon escaped from exile on the island of Elba, is once again in the public eye. What is left of the historic vessel has been salvaged from the tide and shifting sand on the beach at Monterey, California. In 1833 the Natalie's crew, a gang of smugglers from Mexico, went ashore one evening to attend an old time Spanish fiesta, and while the crew danced a storm arose and the ship was blown ashore.

The bulk of the famous sloop has been on display at Monterey. Thirteen bolts, six washers and three nails recovered from the wreck are included in the exhibit. These pieces of metal were under salt water for nearly 100 years. It is not remarkable, however, that they are in perfect preservation. They were made by hand of copper.

PRICES MIXED IN NEW YORK MARKET

Prices were mixed in afternoon trading on the New York Stock Exchange with a heavy tone developing at times. In forenoon transactions numerous new 1924 highs were established amid considerable profit taking.

Speculative interest centred largely in the railroad shares, more than a score of which broke through their previous year's highs.

Profit taking in the industrial group brought about recessions of 1 to 2½ points in a number of issues, including American Can, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Mack Truck, General Asphalt, Davison Chemical and American Woolen. Buying of low-priced rails reached gigantic proportions, particularly in Rock Island, St. Paul, New Haven and several Southwestern issues.

High grade rails were not neglected, however. Atchison and Union Pacific being bid up to new 1924 maximum figures.

Heavy selling of Missouri Pacific common just before noon resulted in a drop of 2 points, the rest of the rail list yielding in sympathy.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent. Sales in the first two hours totaled 841,000 shares.

U. S. Steel was sold above 117 for the first time in nearly six years.

In trading on the Boston Stock Exchange Island Creek Coal lifted over a point in the afternoon. Eastern Mass. St. Ry. was off 1½. Changes were nearly evenly divided. Profit taking was evident in Boston & Maine and New Haven issues.

SHORT, BRUTAL REACTION IS FORECAST

Probably the thought uppermost in the mind of Wall street, or at least that section of the street which is engaged in speculative activities, is, "When will the reaction come about?"

There have been minor sinking spells during the last fourteen days of trading activity, but none of them have assumed the proportions of a sizeable reaction, despite the fact that they have been looked for momentarily.

It is admitted, even in Wall street, to be outside the bounds of reason to suppose that this market should run along for any great length of time without a reaction of proportions—this both because of the great velocity the market has attained and which cannot be maintained without some slowing up, and because of the fact that every bull market in history has been shot through with days on which reaction was very sharp.

Wall Street has begun to reach the conclusion that when the reaction does come along it will be a sharp one, probably short and brutal.

TODAY

to some good reporter to make a reputation.

How would it do to feed a little of that truth-compelling drug, scopolamin, to all those closely concerned. Truth could hurt only the guilty.

A great criminal lawyer says, "No murderer could be convicted if he knew enough to keep his mouth shut." Is that literally true?

THE LITTLE Japanese princess, Nobuko Kum, whose sister is wife of Japan's Prince Regent, is now plain Miss Nobuko. She fell in love with a man below her in rank, will marry him, and gives up her rank, after duly worshiping at the shrine of her ancestors and apologizing to them for her unusual conduct.

PRETTY, SHORT POEMS will be written about that by many Japanese girls, including, doubtless, several within the imperial palace.

It's hard for us, with our rank chiefly financial and artificial, to realize what such a romance means in Japan.

AMERICAN GIRLS will not pity little Nobuko so much when they learn that she has been compelled to give up the royal head dress, worn by women of the imperial family for more than 1,000 years.

Now she can wear any kind of hat she likes.

Look on the Windshield for Certificate

Every used car advertised on this page has undergone a rigid inspection. The Boston American employs expert mechanics to make these tests.

Only an "INSPECTED" car can receive the blue certificate of inspection. It is your protection and safeguard.

If you do not see the blue certificate on the windshield of the car you want to buy, ask the dealer to have an inspection made, by telephoning the Boston American, Liberty 4000. No charge nor obligation.

Cars which pass our inspection are, of course, the good cars. Thus, the list below contains the pick of the USED CAR market in Boston. All types of cars, at all prices, and all inspected.

The Boston American will help you select a Used Car Bargain at just the price you can afford to pay.

Perhaps Hughes Has Secret Reason for Scrapping Ships

Probably Secretary Hughes, if he cares to, can solve the puzzle of American naval impotence, to which he consented at the Washington Conference.

There is some explanation, which the American people have not yet received, why he agreed to the destruction of $200,000,000 of American battleships.

It is not the practice of able corporation lawyers like Mr. Hughes to enter into conferences where, in return for nothing, they destroy the competitive power of their own clients.

In this Washington Conference there was simply something that we know nothing of.

That unknown something would explain more than the agreed destruction of twenty-six of our capital ships. It would explain why Secretary Hughes rejected the opinion of his own naval experts and accepted the British contention that we had no right to elevate the guns of our remaining battleships, to make them shoot as far as England's and Japan's.

Perhaps at the Washington Conference England in secret gave up something which Mr. Hughes thinks worth the sacrifice we had to make.

Perhaps, in case of war with Japan, our navy is promised use of Great Britain's Singapore naval base, when it is finished. Perhaps England has even unconditionally agreed to enter such a war on our side.

Mr. Hughes knows something that we do not know. When we do know it, we may be just as satisfied as he is with our naval status.

We wish Mr. Hughes would take the American public into his confidence. His action in the Naval Disarmament Treaty matter can be explained only by him.

Meanwhile, the $30,000,000 battleship Washington has left the shelter of the Delaware Breakwater and is being destroyed off the Virginia Capes—first fruit of Mr. Hughes' agreements.

Mr. Hearst Warned Democrats

The heads of the Democratic party in Washington are planning a reorganization of the party and a revision of its policies. They are wise.

One of the prime mistakes the Democratic party made was its opposition to Secretary Mellon's plan of tax revision.

The Hearst newspapers repeatedly warned the Democrats of the results of opposing the Mellon plan. In a signed editorial on February 9 of this year, Mr. Hearst said:

> "Secretary Mellon is not risking his reputation as a financier and as Secretary of the Treasury by making any mistake in this important matter.
> "Unless it can be shown that Secretary Mellon is absolutely wrong in his scientific estimate of this tax situation, it would be better for Congress, Democrats and Republicans alike, to accept Secretary Mellon's proposal and give it a fair trial.
> "If it brings the result of increased government revenue and also the result of transferring investment from non-taxable securities into active business, the benefit to the country will be enormous.
> "The national debt can be more speedily reduced, industry will be increased, employment will be greater, with consequent greater prosperity for all.
> "And those who oppose it take a great responsibility upon themselves which their experience in these economic matters may not wholly justify."

When Democrats in House and Senate joined the radicals in defeating the Mellon bill and substituting a political tax measure, the country lost faith in the good business sense of the Democratic party.

A New Planet

Who Cares

The Yerkes Observatory recently photographed a new "planet." And the average human cares as little about that news as a Japanese fisherman on the Inland Sea cares about Wall Street quotations.

Yet for all we know some of us or all of us might one day find ourselves on that new small planet.

Once upon a time we were not on this earth, and now we are here.

We must go somewhere when we leave here. Why not to some of the other planets younger than our own, that will still be habitable when this earth is dead and cold?

The new planet is very small, only about 150 miles round. But a million angels could dance on the point of a needle if each angel were only as big as an atom. All the people that were ever born on all the planets in all the solar systems could live on the new "asteroid" if they were small enough.

No Miracles?

That Kills Romance

The Reverend C. G. Fuller is received from the Baptist into the Presbyterian church, in spite of his statement that he doesn't believe in miracles.

The reverend gentleman expressly denied the truth of three of the best known miracles, the raising of the widow of Naon, Christ walking upon the water and the raising of Lazarus.

A layman can't have any sound opinion on miracles, but he CAN say that it is a pity to take the poetry and romance out of religion.

If a clergyman denies the miracles and is still allowed to preach, can you expect ordinary people to believe the rest of revealed religion, especially when it conflicts with his own desires or interests, or what he believes to be his interests?

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

CONSIDER the way of a Bride, my Daughter; for a vigilance committee is not more relentless, nor a traffic policeman more vigilant.

Lo, she ariseth at dawn that she may prepare her Beloved's breakfast and censor his appetite. She calleth to him three times lest he be late.

Helen Rowland

But a second Wife refuseth to be her husband's alarm clock.

The Bride followeth her Treasure about, with advice and overshoes and questions and pepsin. When he departheth for the office she recalleth him twice for more cautionings—and another kiss.

But a Second Wife permitteth her Husband to read his newspaper in peace, and closeth the door behind him with a sigh of relief.

When he refuseth his food, the Bride is filled with conviction that her Beloved is going into a decline. When he delighteth in his food, she trembleth lest he die of dyspepsia.

But a Seasoned wife knoweth that a man's stomach is made of cast iron, and is not troubled.

* * *

When her Beloved sneezeth, the Bride rusheth and beggeth him to take a tonic. Yes, she is SO solicitous.

* * *

But a Seasoned Wife knoweth well that if a man is suffering, the whole world shall HEAR of it.

* * *

When her Beloved appeareth not upon the moment of an appointment, the Bride hath visions of him mangled beneath a taxicab or waylaid by robbers; she weepeth and waileth and is filled with terror.

* * *

But the Seasoned Wife composeth herself for waiting; for she knoweth that NO man is ever on time, and that NOTHING ever happened to one of them!

* * *

The Bride censoreth her Beloved's drinks and counteth the number of smokes. When he refilleth his pipe, she saith, "Now, dear!

* * *

But a seasoned Wife preferreth smoke in the curtains to a grouch across the table.

Yet, be of good cheer. For the Bride shall, in time, become a Seasoned Wife, and shall take her beauty sleep, and keep her own council.

* * *

Verily, verily, she shall learn that, which every wife knoweth—that the only way to make a man happy is to LET HIM ALONE!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

SUMMER is gone from the woodland and field, gone with her song and her laughter; gone are the glories her coming revealed, songbirds go fluttering after. Here, where the roses so lately were red; here, where the hyacinths flowered, drift a few petals still, withered and dead; here where shy violets cowered. Nothing is left of her beauty and bloom, naught of her colorful splendor. Faded her flowers and spent her perfume, Summer, the gay and the tender. I, too, once cherished the violet's scent; I, too, found grace in the roses; strange, that I linger here now well-content, here, in this dead garden's closes. Strange that I do not take flight like the lark, now that the brown leaves are drifted; southward I, too, might with rapture embark like the linnet on glad wings uplifted. Strange, but I find that my Summer remains here with the ghost of dead flowers; here, where the light of your smile never wanes, fragrance and song fill the hours.

Hard to Keep Warm

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a mother of six children, three girls, 13, 6 and 4 years of age, and three boys, 13, 3 and 1. The girls need dresses, underwear and shoes and the boys need coats, caps, mittens, etc. My husband is not well and I get no help from the city. I am also in need of bed clothes as it is terrible hard for a poor person to keep so many little ones warm with only one stove in six rooms.

MRS. N. M. S.

For Mother of Nine

Helping Hand Editor:

We have a few things such as baby clothes, jersey suit, shoes, 3½ and 4, middy-sweater, toys, etc. Tell us to whom we should send them. THE G. S. H. H. CLUB.

Thank you. Mrs. L., mother of nine children, again expecting the stork will be grateful for the things you wish to give away.

Boy of 10 Needs Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a boy, 10 years old, and we are very poor. Papa cannot afford to get me anything as he has been out of work. I wonder if any kind reader could help me get some clothes. I need a coat very badly to go to school with these cold days. I would surely appreciate any help. GEORGE F.

I have two men's overcoats, one about 36 in size and the other 38. I would like to give them to men who really need them. M. E.

Many thanks. Mr. C. and Mr. D. are both very much in need of overcoats and I am forwarding you their addresses.

Wants a Rug

Helping Hand Editor:

I wonder if any of your kind readers has a rug 9x12, or any small rugs. I live up one flight and it is very cold without anything on the floor. My husband is an ex-service man, out of work and there are three children and my mother to be looked out for. I have a baby eight months old, boy two and a half and girl five. My mother is not well, so cannot take care of the children and let me go to work. I hope I will receive this help which, I assure you, will be greatly appreciated.

MRS. M. T.

Mother Can Sew

Helping Hand Editor:

I have five children, three girls, 8, 6 and 4 years of age, and two boys, 4 and 2½ years. They need underwear and clothing. If anyone has anything, I could make them over for I can sew. Sickness and lack of work is what makes it hard for me to get them myself. Hoping I am not asking too much and with thanks in advance.

MRS. M. P.

Cripple Wants Canary

Helping Hand Editor:

If someone should offer a canary bird in a cage could I have it? I am badly crippled and don't get much pleasure. I would just love a canary bird. I am a boy, 12 years old. JACK R.

Needs Aid at Once

Helping Hand Editor:

I have five children, oldest 15, youngest six months. My husband works as a salesman, but was taken sick three weeks ago and we had to use all the money to get along. Will you please try and help me at once? An overcoat, size 40, will put my husband in shape to go right out and bring in some money which is needed badly. MRS. C. B.

Boy Would Help Brothers

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a boy of fifteen and would like a job after school as an errand boy. I have two brothers, 13½ and 9 years of age, who need clothes for the Winter and mother cannot make enough money to buy everything for us. Hoping some kind reader will help.

WALTER, H.

WHAT THE FLAMING SWORD MEANS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WE are told that when our parents were driven out of the Garden of Eden they could not get back because of an angel at the gate who waved a flaming sword.

This is typical of the fact that the Golden Age is always ahead of us, it is never behind us.

In former times men always believed that the age of beauty and chivalry and idealism lay far in the past, but the tendency of modern thought is to place this in the future.

Every man, at some time or other, has looked upon the swine, the cattle and the dogs, and envied them their low and careless existence. They seem so happy. They have nothing in the way of human worries to trouble them. We envy them their contentment.

A man is so constituted that he can never go back. The modern Garden of Eden lies ahead of us, not behind us.

All the peace and comfort and beauty and glory of life is to be won by going on through struggle and not by going backwards.

The iron law of progress is that the organism must struggle. Every obstacle is for us merely a challenge to our powers. In the exercise of those powers alone, and in their fruition, is found that happiness we desire.

It is useless for us to wish for the peace and contentment of the lower orders of life. We are compelled by our very superiority to go forward and to find our joy in so doing.

The modern idea, which lies in placing the bliss of heaven before us, and not the Golden Age behind us, is responsible for the superiority and advancement of our modern civilization.

There is but one thing for the human being to do and that is to go forward. Relief, if it is to be found at all, is to be found in advancement and not in retreat.

IS EARTH GETTING HEAVIER?

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Three Constant Readers" send this:

"A says that the earth is continually losing weight through usage of its products.

"B says that the earth is continually gaining in weight through the falling of meteors and that nothing can go outside the earth's gravity.

"C says that the weight is almost evenly balanced through usage and the fall of meteors. We would be obliged by your opinion."

IT must be that the earth gains slightly in weight through the continual fall of meteors, but not enough is yet known concerning the loss of weight that the earth may undergo through the escape of rare gases and minute particles to enable us to cast a balance between gains and losses.

There can be no direct loss through "usage of its products," by which you, no doubt, mean the transformation in various ways of dense solid materials into gaseous and more or less invisible forms.

The weight of the smoke that rises into the air over all civilized lands by millions of tons is not, as many persons seem to think, subtracted from the aggregate weight of the planet; it is simply added to the weight of the atmosphere in which it floats.

Its rising is only an effect of difference of specific gravity between the smoke and the air at lower levels, or of ascending air currents due to similar difference of specific gravity in the air itself, and carrying the smoke upward by convection. As long as the smoke remains in the air it increases the total weight of the atmospheric shell surrounding the earth. What is subtracted from te solid part of the planet is the added to its fluid envelope.

Eventually the smoke and dust, and other matter carried up into the air by air currents, or by the effects of pressure descends again upon the ground, much being brought down by rain.

The weight of the clouds, and that of the water vapor out of which they are formed also constitutes a temporary and variable addition to the mass of the atmospheric part of the planet. The main source of the clouds is the ocean; so what the ocean loses in weight the air gains. But eventually the ocean gets it back.

Right here there is a very widespread misunderstanding. Many persons apparently fail to grasp the fact that the atmosphere is just as truly a part of the planet, Earth, as are its rocks and its waters.

At a temperature of about 20 degrees Fahrenheit, every 12 cubic feet of air weighs a pound. And, in its due proportion, this weight of the air goes to make up the aggregate weight of the earth, just as truly as does the 1980 pounds' weight of the same quantity (12 cubic feet) of granite. [illegible] imagine that nothing that floats in the air contributes anything to the weight of the earth.

The same persons can be persuaded to believe that a goldfish floating in a globe of water adds nothing to the total weight, because, forsooth "the buoyancy of the water balances the weight of the fish." They forget the law of action and reaction.

The statement that "nothing can go outside the earth's gravity" is, of course, erroneous. Anything can escape from the earth by moving with sufficient velocity. The required velocity depends upon the intensity of gravity at the earth's surface. This is such that a speed of about seven miles per second would set free any projectile in the sense that gravity could never bring it back again to the earth.

Now, it appears that hydrogen in the gaseous form may escape from the earth by virtue of the inherent maximum speed of vibration of its molecules, which amounts to considerably more than seven miles per second.

So it reasonable to conclude that there may be a constant escape of a certain quantity of hydrogen, occurring at the bounding surface of the atmosphere. This would cause some decrease of the aggregate weight of the earth.

Then, it has been shown that the radiant energy that emanates from the sun-illumined earth must reject minute particles floating around it.

This force of repulsion is generally called "light pressure," and while its chief manifestation is connected with powerfully radiant bodies like the sun, yet in a slight degree the same force must act around any body that radiates energy into surrounding space. In this case the ultimate effects of reaction would be different.

So, we may infer that the earth loses some weight, probably an almost infinitesimal quantity, by driving off into surrounding space finely divided matter originating from the super-pulverization of some of its constituent materials.

But here we are getting somewhat beyond the verge of the precipice that, for the present, marks the space where the solid ground of known facts towers above the mist filled gulf of conjecture.

ONCE-OVERS

CEASE WORRYING ABOUT IMPROBABILITIES AND PREVENT THEM FROM BECOMING POSSIBILITIES.

Is there some disturbing element in your life?

As it creeps in does it haunt most of your thinking time?

Do you fear that you may lose your job; that you will be unable to lay aside enough for that period of declining years; that some ailment may incapacitate you; that your boy or your girl may go wrong; that you may not be able to maintain your present pace, which is necessary to support your family as they are accustomed, or that your better half's affection is waning?

You are giving consideration to these matters, but you must not let them control you to the extent that you bring about the very thing you dread.

Worrying about your health undermines it. You will realise the truth of this statement if you will stop long enough to think of it.

Instead of worrying about your health you should subject yourself to a severe physical examination, strictly follow the prescribed course which your physician says will counteract or check the progress of disease, if such be started.

Stop worrying about the improbable things which might befall you and obviate the possibility of their becoming realities.
